Phlebology

19th ANNUAL CONGRESS

November 10 – 13, 2005 ■ Hyatt Regency, San Francisco (Embarcadero)

FINAL SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

Message from the Program Chair

Robert J. Min, MD, FACPh

Come join us in San Francisco for the 19th Annual Congress of the American College of Phlebology, November 10-13, 2005.

This year's meeting will build on 20 years of success in providing education in the diagnosis and treatment of venous disease. The Pre-Congress day will feature live patient evaluations followed by treatment discussion and demonstrations from an expert panel. Workshops throughout the Congress will be supported by video feed of live cases, complemented by instructional videos, designed to provide maximum viewing for all workshop attendees. The Scientific Abstract sessions have been expanded to allow audience and panel discussion of these latest advances in research. New additions to our always popular Symposia will include a special session by the American Venous Forum on endovascular interventions for deep venous disease. Due to overwhelming demand, this year's Interactive Sessions will be limited in size but not in scope, covering hot topics from foam sclerotherapy and endovenous ablation, to proper coding, setting up a phlebology practice, and "other than legs." You will want to register early for these. And finally, we are honored and excited to have Dr. Peter Gloviczki, Chief of Vascular Surgery at Mayo Clinic and world-renowned expert on venous disease, as this year's keynote speaker.

The strength of the American College of Phlebology has always been the diversity of its membership all united towards the common goal of advancing the study of Phlebology. San Francisco is a city rich in culture and beauty, made up of bustling Chinatown, the gentrifying Mission, clubby SoMa, hippie Haight-Ashbury and faux-hemian North Beach. The stunning Embarcadero waterfront in the heart of this mosaic of a city will be the perfect setting for this year's meeting.

On behalf of the Board of Directors and the 2005 Program Committee, I invite you to come to the 19th Annual Congress of the American College of Phlebology and participate in the greatest phlebology meeting in the world.

See you on the cable cars.

General Information

Registration Information

Advance registration is required to ensure that badges and tickets to sessions and social activities will be available when you arrive at the Congress. Please use the registration form provided or register online. Advance registration closes October 28, 2005. Any registrations received after this date will be processed at the on-site registration rate. On-Site registration will be available, however only a limited number of courses and social activities will be available.

Pre-Congress Day Registration Fees (Thursday, November 10, 2005) – Optional

The purpose of the Pre-Congress Symposium is to provide an intensive review of the core concepts of phlebologic evaluation and treatment. These include venous anatomy, physiology, ultrasound evaluation, surgical and non-surgical treatment modalities and nursing participation. We have divided the day into tracks to specifically accommodate those who have specialized interest in surgery, ultrasound and nursing. While the Symposium is oriented toward providers who seek introduction to Phlebology, it is comprehensive enough to provide a very thorough review for even the most experienced practitioner.

This year we are changing the format of the afternoon workshops to be more practical and problem oriented. Rather than focusing on individual specific treatment methods we will be looking at a variety of real patients with venous pathology; proceeding through the steps of appropriate evaluation, then presenting different possible treatment strategies which will include compression, sclerotherapy, laser, ambulatory phlebectomy, and endovenous ablation. Participants will come away with a foundation of knowledge upon which they can build through the ensuing days of the Congress. (Patients will be used as diagnostic models, however no treatment per se will be demonstrated.)
